Duane R. Dishong, Staff Engineer
Carnegie Natural Gas Company
800 Regis Avenue
Pittsburgh, PA 15236

Dear Mr. Dishong:

This letter is to confirm the substance of your August 28, 1984 telephone conversation with Mrs. Patricia Robbins of our staff. The subject of the conversation was the status of the Carnegie Natural Gas Company application for a hazardous waste transporter license. As Mrs. Robbins explained, a license cannot be issued to Carnegie Natural Gas at this time.

Section 503(d) of the Solid Waste Management Act (Act 97, 1980) provides, in part, that hazardous waste permits or licenses may not be issued by the Department to applicant corporations which are in violation of Act 97, or if corporations related to the applicant corporation are in violation of Act 97. Carnegie Natural Gas Company is a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation, which has current violations at several facilities it operates or has operated in Pennsylvania. For this reason, until the violations at the U.S. Steel facilities are resolved, a Hazardous Waste Transporter License cannot be issued to Carnegie Natural Gas Company.

Unless you desire otherwise, we will hold your complete license application in abeyance until the U.S. Steel problems are resolved. However, if you would desire at any time to withdraw the Carnegie Natural Gas application, you may by informing Mrs. Robbins in writing of your withdrawal request.

Sincerely,

Leonard W. Tritt, Chief
Transportation and Reporting Section
Division of Hazardous Waste Management
